School Overview

The School of Communications offers bachelor's degrees in advertising and integrated communications; film, television and media arts; graphic and interactive design; journalism; media studies; and public relations, as well as master's degrees in cinematic production management, interactive media and communications, journalism, public relations and sports journalism. The school also has well-established relationships with more than 1,000 private and nonprofit communications organizations, offering advanced students internship opportunities in professional settings. Students are encouraged to explore and advance their educational and professional interests while gaining the critical practical experience and training to develop a portfolio of work before they graduate.

To assist in the twin goals of offering our faculty a high-level view of innovations in the media world as well as offering our students high-quality internships and post-graduation employment, the school has created the Alumni Advisory Board (https://www.qu.edu/schools/communications/alumni-advisory-board.html), consisting of media leaders and executives.

On campus, students work in one of the finest university media education facilities in the Northeast — the Ed McMahon Communications Center. The center features a spacious, professional-level, all-digital 4K television studio; a media innovation classroom; 4K collaborative editing suites; and a 7.1 surround sound screening theater. The center is equipped with state-of-the-art technology, including numerous iMac stations running the latest applications for post-production and animation. It includes an automated podcast studio, and is staffed with highly skilled media professionals to instruct and assist our students. Additional classrooms and labs, along with the Quinnipiac University Podcast Studio, the Open-Air Production Studio, "The Agency" (a student-run integrated communications agency offering design, advertising and public relations services to clients), a design studio, a Remote Equipment Depot, the "Hub" student computer center, and independent study facilities are located in the Center for Communications and Engineering, which also houses the school's faculty and administrative offices.
Undergraduate Studies

School Requirements

Beyond the University Curriculum requirements, students pursuing a bachelor of arts degree in the School of Communications must complete the following:

- 9 credits in the school-wide core
- all major requirements (outlined below)
- a minor (typically 18 credits) to be chosen in consultation with the student’s adviser
- 2 credits in the Seminars for Success: COM 101 and COM 201
- 6 credits in the area of “global issues and cultures.” The School of Communications maintains a list of acceptable courses to satisfy this requirement.
- two additional courses outside the School of Communications, one of which must be at the 200 level or higher.
- Note: The BA and BFA degrees in film, television and media arts requires DR 150, DR 160 or DR 220 and one additional course outside the School of Communications at the 200 level or higher. Students pursuing the BFA degree are not required to complete a minor.

Academic Expectations: Students are expected to achieve a B- (2.67 GPA) or better in School of Communications courses during their first semester in the School of Communications. Students who do not meet this standard will be notified and are required to meet with a representative from the dean’s office to address their academic progress and develop a plan for improvement.

Transfer Credits: The School of Communications accepts up to 18 transfer credits toward major requirements. Additional courses may apply to UC or elective courses as appropriate.

Advising

Academic advising in the School of Communications fosters a collaborative relationship between student and adviser. Our academic advising program is dedicated to guiding undergraduates in achieving intellectual and personal growth and preparing them for professional success in a diverse and changing global community. Faculty and staff of the School of Communications advise all students. During each student’s undergraduate career, he or she is paired with a faculty adviser who will serve as a guide and mentor. Although the primary responsibility for course selection rests with the student, the adviser assists in reviewing the student’s program plan and discussing course selection during a mandatory advising meeting each semester prior to course registration. Students are required to schedule and attend a meeting with their assigned adviser each semester by their advising deadline.

Note: The primary responsibility for the completion of all prerequisites for courses belongs to the student. Students who take courses without the proper prerequisites, or who complete the prerequisites after taking the courses, may lose credits toward their degree requirements. Students may not repeat a course for credit except to remove an F grade or, under special circumstances, to remove a C- or D grade in a school requirement, a prerequisite, or within the major.

Career Development

In the School of Communications, career development staff work with students to explore communications career interests and assist with application materials unique to communications industries such as portfolios and resume reels. There is a strong focus on networking, particularly with alumni of the School of Communications, to prepare students to land internships and launch careers in fields that require specific searching techniques and rely heavily on referrals. Students learn about a variety of job structures from traditional full-time roles to freelance work common in some areas of industry. Staff play an integral part in the career curriculum of the school and are the instructors of both the Media Career Development course, required for all Communications students to graduate, and all credit-bearing internship courses.

Mission

The mission of the School of Communications is to educate communications professionals. We prepare active citizens with the tools to be self-reflective critical thinkers, creative problem-solvers, and transformative storytellers.

Values

The School of Communications faculty and staff believe that the voices of all people should be heard, and that any ensuing debate be based on considered thought and evidence and without any dehumanizing words or actions.

We believe that educating communications professionals must happen in an environment that is grounded in respect for different cultures and experiences.

We believe in justice, equality and compassion as principles that guide our decisions and actions.

We believe in practicing an ethics of care that responds to the needs of each individual in our community.

We believe that our curricula and classrooms should be inclusive spaces where everyone should feel comfortable to bring their whole selves.

We believe that students, faculty and staff should reflect the diversity of our society and that they should see themselves represented in the materials that we teach.

We acknowledge the institutionalized inequalities that limit access to higher education and the ways in which the School has benefited from them, including the indigenous land on which Quinnipiac University stands.

Commitment

The School reaffirms its commitment to equalizing access to education for all students and will provide resources, recruitment tools and programs to mitigate the challenges that marginalized students face in higher education.

The School will engage in a continual process of self-examination and adaptation that recognizes the ways in which we participate in and benefit from the current system.

The School will educate students who will be active citizens, eager to join in the building of democracy and equipped to identify and fight against injustice.

The School will regularly evaluate and inspect our curriculum to ensure it is inclusive and designed to provide students with the concepts and vocabulary they need to effectively communicate in a multicultural society.
The School will participate in a continuing process of growth that is transparent and accountable to all members of our community.

UC: Fine Arts

FTM 330. Emerging Cinematography Techniques. 3 Credits. This course is designed to engage students in the cutting edge of cinematography and lighting. Students undertake in-depth exploration of developing concepts and become familiar with emerging technologies, equipment and narrative techniques through lectures, demonstrations and hands-on exercises.

Prerequisites: Take FTM 110 and FTM 112.

Offered: As needed, All
FTM 342. Directing Film and Television. 3 Credits.
Students are introduced to the history, theory and basic concepts of narrative single camera field and multicamera studio direction for current and developing distribution platforms. This course emphasizes principles of dramatic structure, script breakdown and analysis, visualization and story boarding, preproduction scheduling and casting, working with actors to effectively shape performances and working with crew. Students prepare and direct a series of short scenes.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: Every year, Spring

FTM 355. Documentary Production. 3 Credits.
This course challenges students to master the conceptual and technical skills of visual storytelling to produce more advanced, single-camera field projects on selected, specialized topics that may change from semester to semester. Past course content has included documentary production in South Africa and in Ireland, as well as in the United States. The course emphasizes professional production roles, including writing and directing, scheduling and production management, production, post-production, distribution and marketing. Sophomore status required.
Offered: Every year, Spring

FTM 372. Screenwriting. 3 Credits.
Students learn to shape stories for the screen. Emphasis is on dramatic structuring, character development, pacing and dialogue. Professional screenplays are analyzed and discussed, and final projects give students the opportunity to develop an original short screenplay.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 245 or permission of the department chair.
Offered: Every year, All

FTM 375. Projects in Single Camera and Lighting. 3 Credits.
This course covers such topics as the characteristics and qualities of light, lighting control, principles of visual composition and design, color, contrast, the properties of lenses, how film emulsions and image sensors react to light, filters, matte boxes and other image control devices, metering and exposure control, the effective use of various lighting instruments and accessories, electrical safety and the basics of gripping and gaffing on set and on location. Students learn in an active, hands-on workshop environment and produce a major project.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110.
Offered: Every year, Fall

FTM 380. Projects in Audio Production. 3 Credits.
In this course, students learn the theory and technique behind audio capture, editing and mixing. With audio production, students learn how to record for voice, ambience and other film/radio/TV applications. In mixing, students learn how to combine disparate audio ideas in order to make meaningful expressions that can complicate and amplify visual media. Participants learn that audio storytelling goes beyond language and can be employed for emotional effect in surprising ways. Students learn the basics of working in a DAW (Digital Audio Workspace) and also learn how to "round trip" audio through the Adobe Creative Suite. Participants learn how to improve audio in their own projects while also learning about careers such as sound mixer and podcast producer. No previous musical or technical training is required to take this course.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110.
Offered: As needed, All

FTM 390. Projects in Multicamera Production. 3 Credits.
Attracting and keeping the audience's attention is the first responsibility of the director. This course gives students the opportunity to explore the art and craft of directing in a multicamera, high-definition studio environment. Participants examine the roles and responsibilities of the director, including shot composition, crew motivation, calling a live production and ethics. Students are asked to visually design a television program from concept to completion in a number of genres, including news, sports, sitcoms, dramas and commercials.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: Every year, Fall

FTM 392. Post-Production Techniques. 3 Credits.
In this course, students explore such topics as the expressive capability of the editing process; how editing functions to "create" time, tempo, and visual rhythm; the "building" of scenes in editing to achieve various dramatic goals; and telling the story through careful control of sound and image over time. Students gain experience in using the tools and techniques of modern digital post-production technology. Topics include post-production workflow, the art of the cut, the Rule of Six, audio mixing, sound design, foley, primary color grading, and secondary color grading. Software utilized includes the Adobe Creative Suite and DaVinci Resolve.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: As needed

FTM 393. Animation Techniques. 3 Credits.
Students learn to create sophisticated 2D and 3D still and animated electronic graphics for video that are aesthetically pleasing, expressive and meaningful. Principles of good design, composition and color are stressed, as well as the ability to produce visual interest in support of communication goals.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: Every year, All

FTM 397. Summer Production Project. 4 Credits.
This advanced production course is for juniors majoring in film, television and media arts. It takes place on campus or on the Nice, France, campus of a major French film and video institute (ESRA, Paris), and involves the writing, shooting and editing of a polished video project that is then presented to a professional jury.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: As needed, Summer

FTM 399. Independent Study. 1-6 Credits.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 110, FTM 112.
Offered: As needed

FTM 450. Senior Seminar in Film and Television. 3 Credits.
This seminar entails an in-depth examination of issues and research perspectives in film and television. Seminar titles vary each term and may cover subject areas such as film history, reality television, political documentaries, docudrama and contemporary trends in the media industry. Students should consult the School of Communications course bulletin for information about each semester's offerings. Senior status is usually required.
Offered: Every year, All
FTM 493. Senior Project Colloquy: Preproduction. 3 Credits. This required 3-credit discussion, development, preproduction and production course must be taken in the semester prior to the student's undertaking of the Senior Project. Meeting collectively and individually, all fourth-year FTM students must be enrolled in this course in order to conceptualize and prepare preproduction materials essential for the successful completion of the Senior Project, and to undertake a new short production project, retrospective of their previous work. Individual class sessions are devoted to each aspect of preproduction and assignments that relate to each aspect are completed during the term. Senior status in FTM is required.
Offered: Every year, Fall

FTM 495. Senior Project Colloquy: Production. 3 Credits. In this capstone course, students are asked to create an individual thesis project that reflects the highest level of their abilities. From pitching their individual project ideas through writing, production and post-production, students are pushed to work at the peak of their skills. The creativity, quality and professionalism of the finished projects are judged by outside professionals and faculty and staff from the School of Communications FTM program, and give graduating seniors important portfolio material. Senior status in FTM is required.
Prerequisites: Take FTM 493.
Offered: Every year, Spring

FTM 499. Independent Study. 3 Credits.

Graphic and Interactive Design (GID)

GID 110. Design Research and Methods. 3 Credits. This foundation course in research methods for art and design introduces informed strategies for problem solving and prepares students for upper-level coursework in graphic and interactive design. Emphasis is placed on the role of critical thinking in the design process. Theoretical models of design analysis are introduced. Practical hands-on methods include visual research, design journals, thumbnail sketches, mind maps, storyboards, comprehensives, diagramming, prototyping, case studies, topic and content development and other forms of conceptualization.
Offered: Every year, Fall

GID 161. Web Design I. 3 Credits. This course extends the knowledge and practice of visual design using professional-level software for the creation of web design in preparation for advanced coursework. Students produce course projects that demonstrate creativity, design concepts, critical thinking, aesthetic principles and basic technical competence.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 110 or GID 110; and COM 130.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

GID 200. Special Topics in Graphics and Interactive Design. 3 Credits. Offered: As needed

GID 205. Visual Thinking: Practice and Process. 4 Credits. This course builds a foundation in visual thinking practices and cultivates a better understanding of the creative process. Students examine the ways in which images communicate meaning and how visual thinking can be used as an alternative to and enhancement of verbal and quantitative thinking. Insights and applications to different fields including psychology, art, medicine, literature and business are explored throughout. The study and practice of a variety of visual thinking techniques build the foundation for generating innovative concepts and developing personal creative and visual thinking practices. No previous art, design or drawing experience necessary.
Offered: As needed

GID 210. Graphic Design History. 3 Credits. This course surveys the historical and cultural events, movements and achievements that laid the groundwork for the contemporary practices and products of graphic design. Through lecture, video, discussion, research and studio projects, students are introduced to the visual history, the innovators and the technologies that influenced and transformed the practices of visual communication.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 110 or GID 110.
Offered: As needed

GID 250. Web Design II. 3 Credits. This intermediate web design course provides further study in current industry standards for UX/UI design. User experience and user interface methods are explored and practiced in addition to a grounding in information architecture processes and techniques. Websites are developed using responsive design requirements.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 110 and IDD 161 or GID 110 and GID 161.
Offered: Every year, Spring

GID 270. Typography I. 3 Credits. This course enables the student to both understand type and to use it as a design element. Using current computer graphics technology, topics explored include the use of type, page layout, color and the importing of graphics. Using professional page layout software, students create projects that demonstrate both design aesthetics and technical skills. Finished pieces are printed and become part of the student's portfolio.
Prerequisites: Take COM 130; and IDD 110 or GID 110.
Offered: Every year, Spring

GID 300. Special Topics in GID. 3 Credits.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 161 or GID 161 or COM 130.
Offered: As needed

GID 301. Motion Graphics I. 3 Credits. This course explores aesthetic, critical and technical topics in motion graphics and 2D animation. Students produce projects that demonstrate knowledge and understanding of 2D animation and motion graphics used in the field of design.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 110 and IDD 161; or GID 110 and GID 161.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

GID 305. Digital Photography. 3 Credits. This course explores the aesthetic, critical and technical topics in the creation of photographic images. Through practice, research and critique, students develop the conceptual, technical and critical skills needed to create innovative photographic projects.
Offered: As needed

GID 315. Mobile Interaction Design. 3 Credits. This course covers practical techniques for researching, designing and prototyping mobile applications and experiences. Some of the topics covered include wireframe creation, user studies and paper and digital prototyping.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 301 or GID 301.
Offered: Every year, Spring

GID 370. Typography II. 3 Credits. This course picks up where GID 270 leaves off by instructing in advanced typographic design; the use of grid structures; juxtapositions of type and image; and preparation for offset printing. Using the current computer technology, students create projects that demonstrate both an advanced knowledge of design/typography and current digital production processes. Finished pieces are printed and become part of the student's professional portfolio.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 270 or GID 270.
Offered: As needed
GID 399. Advanced Independent Studio Work in Graphic and Interactive Design.  3 Credits.  Advanced independent studio work in graphic and interactive design.
Offered: As needed
GID 400. Special Topics in GID.  3 Credits.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 301 or GID 301.
Offered: As needed
GID 410. Web Design III.  3 Credits.  This course explores advanced aesthetic, critical and technical topics in website design, development, structure and information architecture. Students use problem-solving methods of design research and analysis combined with authoring and scripting environments to enhance design, interaction, usability and effective communication. Topics include current processes and technologies of web design and web standards. Senior status required.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 250 and IDD 301; or GID 250 and GID 301.
Offered: Every year, Fall
GID 440. Motion Graphics II.  3 Credits.  This course explores advanced aesthetic, critical and technical topics in motion graphics and animation. Topics include typography and motion graphic design and layout, editing digital video, and audio. Students use problem-solving methods of design research and analysis to produce digital video animations that demonstrate both knowledge and understanding of motion graphics, and that provide them with professional entry into the field.
Prerequisites: Take IDD 301 or GID 301.
Offered: As needed
GID 480. Senior Seminar and Portfolio.  3 Credits.  In this course, students consider critical issues in interactive design and prepare a portfolio, website, resume and other professional materials. For majors in graphic and interactive design. Senior status is required.
Prerequisites: Take GID 410.
Offered: Every year, Spring
GID 499. Advanced Independent Studio Work in Graphic and Interactive Design.  3 Credits.  Advanced independent studio work in graphic and interactive design.
Offered: As needed

Interactive Media and Communications (ICM)

ICM 500. Special Topics in Interactive Media.  3 Credits.  The subject matter for this course varies depending on industry and professional trends.
Offered: As needed
ICM 501. Foundations in Graduate Studies.  3 Credits.  A sequence of readings, practices and exercises introduces the students to the "deep work" required of master’s-level study. Through structured discussions, presentations, projects and readings, students build the knowledge base and critical skills required to formulate methodological research and practice across media. Each student sets up a portfolio site for the collection of research and practice artifacts created throughout the master’s coursework.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring
ICM 502. Visual Design.  3 Credits.  This course covers the principles and practices associated with graphic design as a way to make complex information easier to understand and use. With a primary focus on typography as the fundamental means of conveying content, the course emphasizes the creative process of organizing and visualizing type and images through hierarchy, spatial organization of grid structures, positive and negative space, depth perception, transparency, and color theory. Readings locate design and typography within the larger history of visual art and graphic design and in relation to technology developments. Students who majored in GID at Quinipiac as undergraduates, or those with professional graphic design experience should choose another course.
Offered: Every year, Spring and Summer
ICM 504. Motion Across Media.  3 Credits.  This course covers the concepts of motion design across multiple platforms. Students are challenged to analyze and create effective animations using the entire design process, including research, preproduction, storyboarding, and production techniques. Analysis of navigation, storytelling, visual design, and message delivery inform the application of methods. The focus is on communicating ideas to the audience effectively through motion in its many forms, whether on desktops, smart phones, tablets, or kiosks.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Summer
ICM 505. Web Technologies.  3 Credits.  This course introduces the foundational techniques of creating web-based content. Through a series of exercises, participants learn how interactive networks are organized, where to find the information necessary to create standards-based systems, and gain elementary experience designing and building sites.
Offered: Every year, Spring and Summer
ICM 506. Writing for Interactive Media.  3 Credits.  Good writing skills are a necessity for professional communication in spite of the changing media landscape. In this course students create, develop and hone a distinct written voice within varied media environments. Much of professional media work involves creating a consistent voice or presence for a person, organization or company. Participants focus on how to accomplish (or enhance) this process using effective compositional techniques.
Offered: Every year, All
ICM 508. Audio and Video Design.  3 Credits.  This course covers the aesthetic and technical principles and practices used to create video and audio content for cross platform and device delivery. Effective storytelling and message delivery concepts are emphasized while exploring various production techniques including storyboarding, script, an introduction to audio production, cinematography, lighting, interviewing, editing, and effective media distribution.
Offered: Every year, All
ICM 512. Principles of User Experience Design.  3 Credits.  This course explores the ever-changing processes and methods of user experience design. The Human-Centered Design and Design Thinking process are studied through readings and hands-on projects that cover empathy, the psychology of the user, problem definition, and ideation methods.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring
ICM 513. Content Strategy. 3 Credits.
Content is critical in today's media landscape, but without a strategic plan, it can remain invisible to the audience you wish to reach. In this course, students learn the best ways to design and implement a content strategy to engage a targeted audience. They are immersed in the planning for the creation and distribution of engaging stories and information. Students become content strategy practitioners who know how to use words, pictures, video, and social and mobile media to build an audience and communicate value.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

ICM 514. Understanding Your Audience. 3 Credits.
Usability is the study of discrepancies between expected and actual user behavior. The course introduces students to empirical user research methods such as contextual inquiry, ethnographic studies, card sorting, and cognitive walkthroughs, that provide the foundation for user-centered interaction and communications design. In addition, students conduct effective usability tests, interviews, and surveys.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

ICM 517. Ideation, Prototyping and Testing. 3 Credits.
Ideation, prototyping and testing teaches students how to use low and high-fidelity sketching, information architecture, flowcharts, wireframes, user interface design, and functional prototypes for a variety of design problems. Through a series of creative projects, students learn various methods for each of these steps in the development of design products.
Offered: Every year, Spring and Summer

ICM 518. Visual Storytelling. 3 Credits.
The course provides an introduction to the concepts of visual storytelling and immerses students in the theory and practice of creating and delivering visual narratives in digital environments. The course includes both the history of visual storytelling as well as contemporary approaches used in a variety of information related disciplines. Students analyze examples of work and apply that knowledge to create their own visual narratives.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

ICM 522. Social Media Practice and Techniques. 3 Credits.
The widespread use of social media in society has created a communications environment built on platforms that encourage contribution and collaboration through user-created media and interaction. This course explores the underlying concepts, development and management of social media platforms as well as the creation of effective approaches to facilitate a viable social media presence.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

ICM 524. Social Media Analytics. 3 Credits.
This course gives students a working knowledge of the social media analytics process and analytics tools, along with their application to communications objectives within real-world situations.
Offered: Every year, Fall and Spring

ICM 528. Content Creation. 3 Credits.
In this course, we explore the creation of engaging content. Students are guided through the process of planning and creating a suite of related projects in the medium(s) of their choice (writing, video, audio, image making.) The focus is on the conceptual processes and practices used in developing a unique and persuasive body of work to be distributed across mediums. Areas of interest are researched and then developed into a series of related pieces.
Offered: Every year, Spring and Summer

ICM 529. Data Visualization. 3 Credits.
This is a course in finding and telling visual stories from data. Students explore fundamental principles of data analysis and visual techniques, examine chart types and when to use them, and learn how to acquire, process and filter data. Through an understanding of data visualization best practices and audience analysis, students are able to identify and articulate what makes a successful information design. Industry-standard software tools are used to create static and interactive graphics—including charts, maps and diagrams—that make information more accessible to the intended audiences.
Offered: As needed, Fall and Summer Online

ICM 530. Independent Study. 3 Credits.
This elective course provides students with the opportunity to work in a professional setting to acquire additional skills and insights into their chosen area of study. Students completing this course are required to work in a supervised environment. All internships must be approved by the program director.
Offered: As needed, All

ICM 531. Graduate Internship. 3 Credits.
This elective course provides interactive media students with the opportunity to work in a professional setting to acquire additional skills and insights into their chosen area of study. Students completing this course are required to work in a supervised environment. All internships must be approved by the program director.
Offered: As needed, All

ICM 540. Interactive Communications Abroad. 3 Credits.
This multi-section course introduces students to the worldwide development of communications, including communication practices, infrastructure, environments, and specializations. Students conduct primary and secondary research on communications in a particular country or cross-cultural context. The topics can range from international visual arts through storytelling, global branding, and design, depending on the specialty of the instructor. This course includes a short-term study-abroad component directly related to the topic of the course, where students will be able to expand their skills and knowledge in a new environment. An interactive communications graduate-level final project is required.
Offered: As needed

ICM 601. Master's Capstone. 3 Credits.
Students create a professional quality web portfolio selected from the best work from their courses and experiences in the master's program. Each student is facilitated through the process of identifying and packaging works, creating a consistent message and image using the products of their research and practice.
Offered: Every year, Spring and Summer

Journalism (JRN)

JRN 100. Special Topics in Journalism. 3 Credits.
This course is only open to high school students in the QU Academy program. The content of this course is specialized and varies by semester and by section. A variety of topics in journalism may be covered. Students should consult the course description in the schedule for details on specific offerings.
Offered: As needed
JRN 106. Multimedia Production Techniques (SPS 106). 3 Credits.
Students learn the fundamentals of multimedia production, including the use of digital cameras and related equipment, to tell simple stories and the use of editing software to prepare them for distribution. Students learn the rudiments of video-camera use, composition and lighting, capturing audio, continuity, interviewing, voiceovers, music beds, graphics, and shooting and editing action. Students produce b-roll, features, interviews, location pieces and story packages pertaining to their concentrations or areas of interest.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 199. Journalism Independent Study. 1-6 Credits.

JRN 200. Special Topics in Journalism. 3 Credits.
Students engage in a detailed examination of current issues in journalism in a format that may incorporate academic research, journalistic writing and multimedia presentations. Students should consult the School of Communications course bulletin for information about each semester's offerings.
Offered: As needed

JRN 205. Photojournalism Fundamentals. 3 Credits.
This hands-on course focuses on creating compelling, original news photography using the latest DSLR and Mirrorless cameras that journalists in the field are using today. Students learn about the basics of photography in this course and how to shape those technical skills into competent photojournalism.
Offered: Every other year, Spring

JRN 260. News Writing. 3 Credits.
This course teaches the principles and practices of news writing for digital platforms and print. Journalists must acquire skills to identify a news story and its essential elements, gather information efficiently, place it in a meaningful context, and write concise and compelling accounts. The readings, discussions, exercises and assignments for this course are designed to help students acquire such skills and understand how to utilize them wisely.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 263. Broadcast News Writing. 3 Credits.
Students are introduced to the fundamentals of writing for the broadcast media in a professional environment. Topics include writing for radio and television, as well as integrating sound and video into news stories. The course also provides a basic understanding of primary journalistic values such as accuracy and fairness as they apply to broadcast news.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 275. News Reporting. 3 Credits.
This course is focused on news reporting. Students learn how to gather, analyze and use information for journalistic stories. They learn to identify and use digital databases and resources, conduct thought-provoking interviews, and search and locate public documents in ethical and legal manners.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 260 or JRN 263.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 280. The Art of the Podcast (SPS 280). 3 Credits.
This hands-on course explores creative audio storytelling via the podcast. Students learn how to research, write, record, edit and self-publish creative nonfiction and fictional stories that are both original, and emulate some of the most popular podcasts on the market. Special emphasis is placed on audio gathering techniques, storytelling techniques and interviewing for live and recorded shows.
Offered: As needed, Spring

JRN 285. Mobile Journalism: The Future of News. 3 Credits.
News consumption on smartphones and tablets has surpassed that of desktops and newspapers, making mobile devices key to the future of news. Students examine the impact of this trend on the future of journalism, learn about the technologies necessary to produce news on these devices, critique the user experience provided by various apps and mobile websites, and produce a news app of their own. They also learn how to cover news events using mobile technology, how to produce mobile news stories and how to work in a mobile newsroom.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140.
Offered: As needed, All

JRN 291. Reporting for Television I. 3 Credits.
Students learn the principles of producing television news packages, which they shoot and edit using HD non-linear equipment. All students cover news and sports primarily off campus. The focus is on writing, news judgment, content, interviewing, use of voice and doing stand-ups. Stories can air on the TV newscast that is broadcast live weekly.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 106 or SPS 106; and JRN 260 or JRN 263.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 300. Special Topics in Journalism. 3 Credits.
Students engage in a detailed examination of current issues in journalism in a format that may incorporate academic research, journalistic writing and multimedia presentations. Students should consult the School of Communications course bulletin for information about each semester's offerings.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140.
Offered: As needed, All

JRN 301. Special Topics. 4 Credits.
Offered: As needed

JRN 311. Reporting for Television II. 3 Credits.
In this course, students produce in-depth television stories. Pieces are longer to allow the student to explore issues in greater detail. Stories can air on the TV newscast that is broadcast live weekly.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 291.
Offered: As needed

JRN 315. The Art of Journalistic Interviewing. 3 Credits.
Compelling stories don’t just happen. They come from strong interviewing skills that tell stories people care about. Students learn how to ask questions that elicit pithy responses, emotion and expertise, using in-class and out-of-class exercises. Students also analyze and critique the interviewing styles used by professional journalists, as well as the work of their classmates.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 106 or SPS 106; and COM 140.
Offered: As needed
JRN 325. Telling Global Stories. 3 Credits.
Using multimedia to gather and present facts lets journalists expand the scope of their storytelling. Students in this course examine current international journalism trends and socioeconomic and political issues specific to a developing country, learn fact-gathering techniques, and travel to that country during spring break to put into practice what they have learned. After spring break, students work on an interdisciplinary multimedia project.
Offered: As needed, Spring

JRN 341. Sporting Culture Through Nonfiction. 3 Credits.
It has often been said that sport is a microcosm of society, but many rhetoric scholars have begun to suggest that sport plays a role in constituting society and is "defined by a range of political practices, including allocations of resources, representations of identity, projections of nationalism and globalization, activism and change." This directed readings course examines American culture, as well as comparative values, through nonfictional accounts of sport.
Offered: As needed, Summer Online

JRN 343. Literary Journalism in the ’60s. 3 Credits.
The 1960s stand out as an era of change and turbulence in 20th-century America. Throughout the 1960s and 1970s, these nonfiction writers and journalists wrote in a personal style that became known as "Literary Journalism," or "The New Journalism." This directed reading course requires students to analyze the historical and contemporary views of major literary journalists.
Offered: As needed, Summer Online
UC: University Curriculum Ele

JRN 359. Journalism Elective. 3 Credits.

JRN 360. Watchdog Reporting. 3 Credits.
In this course, students learn and practice watchdog journalism, helping to inform our communities and keeping public figures and institutions in check. Students cover in-depth news off campus, on topics such as crime, public health, politics, education and the environment. In conversations with working journalists, students learn both innovative and proven strategies for reporting. Students also work individually and in teams to publish stories and multimedia projects based on public data, documents and interviews.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 260 or JRN 263.
Offered: As needed, Spring

JRN 361. Sports Reporting (SPS 361). 3 Credits.
This course introduces students to coverage of sports for the news media and includes writing game stories and sports profiles.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 260 or JRN 263.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 362. The Story of Football (SPS 362). 3 Credits.
This course traces the historical trajectory of American football and the coaches, players and media portrayals that transformed the game from a 19th-century collegiate test of manliness to what it is today: a spectator sport of immense appeal whose popularity endures despite more than a century of concerns over the game’s debilitating and sometimes lethal violence.
Offered: Every year, Fall

JRN 364. Sports Broadcasting. 3 Credits.
This course introduces students to the concepts and content of what makes a good sports broadcaster. Aspects of sports broadcasting, both from inside the studio and outside on the field of play are explored. Students will learn and take on all the roles involved in sports broadcasting: that of a studio host, play by play, analyst, sideline reporter, interviewer and more.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 263
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 365. Effective Editing. 3 Credits.
Students learn the basics of editing online text, magazines and newspapers, with an emphasis on copyediting, headline writing, composition and story packaging.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 275.
Offered: As needed

JRN 372. Entrepreneurial Media (The MIC Project). 3 Credits.
This course addresses the fiscal and distribution challenges faced by journalists and media professionals and empowers student teams to construct sustainable business models. Students experiment with the latest technology, exchange ideas with some of the industry’s most prominent thinkers and developers, and create content or products for viable media business ventures. Open to all School of Communications students.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140
Offered: Every year, Fall

JRN 375. Cultural and Entertainment Journalism. 3 Credits.
Students learn how to write about arts and culture by reporting on local events and developing a theoretical framework for cultural reviewing. Topics include television, music, theater and film. In addition to hands-on reporting assignments, coursework includes readings, screenings and fieldwork.
Prerequisites: Take COM 140 or permission of instructor.
Offered: Every other year, Fall

JRN 380. Fundamentals of Digital Journalism. 3 Credits.
This course covers the principles and practices associated with researching and producing stories for digital media. Students are required to produce stories that include textual, audio, video and interactive elements.
Prerequisites: Take JRN 106 or SPS 106; and JRN 260 or JRN 263.
Offered: Every year, All

JRN 388. Business Reporting: Following the Money. 3 Credits.
Students learn methods and tactics of writing about businesses for mass communication. The course covers why and how companies operate and how to write stories about corporate news from public records and other sources.
Offered: Every other year, Spring

JRN 395. Broadcast Performance. 3 Credits.
